

0025 In FIG.8 Is a front view of the writing board with 2.0 by 2.0 inches, is colored rectangle area in orange and white, and has 11 lines 15 where any short idea or message will be written, can be any kind of sentence. Provides room to anybody's initiative to precise whatever was expressed with colors. In FIG. 9 an example of a message is shown.

0026 In FIG.10 We have the Color's significance 16 that is a quick guide of the psychological characteristics of colors, in that way a person can look at this chart if is not familiar with the meanings of colors yet, after reading the manual, which is shown in FIG.12, This area 17 situated in the inferior left corner of the board shows illustrations of a green indicator 7 and its meanings 18, of a yellow indicator 8, and its connotations 19 and a red indicator 9 with three adjectives 20.

0027 Finally in FIG.11 is a front view of the a sensor with a yellow indicator 8 on its green part 11. Expressing happiness (yellow indicator) and showing changes in self realization (green section of the sensor) .

0028 In FIG.12 there is a front view of the manual's cover, a booklet, that briefly will introduce people to the world of colors and expressing with them on the sensor .

0029 It can now be seen the process of how a board ,described in detail previously, with some colored pieces attached can be a tool for people to communicate as fallows: A small group of people should read the manual FIG.12 get to know the colors and their characteristics. Place the sensor on its refrigerator thanks to the magnetic material. Identify the cones either with words FIG.3 or pictures FIG.4 and get ready to communicate with color FIG.11 and express , if is necessary, on the writing board FIG 9, or if is the case, using the help bar FIG. 6 and FIG. 7. Every time the person is not sure about how to say it with colors can check the color's significance chart Fig10. Then he or she will take an indicator FIG. 5 and make the communication call placing this on a chosen colored area of the own sensor, based on his or her emotional state and psychological needs, and will wait to establish a dialogue.